October

10/2

"Puddle, pothole, portal"

Through 1/5, SculptureCenter
A genre-busting show that's part Saul Steinberg centennial and part party, with a mix of drawings and sculptural curios (a singing mailbox?).

10/4

"Robert Gober: The Heart Is Not a Metaphor"

Through 1/18,

MoMA
... But everything in the artist's first big survey probably is.

10/9

"Egon Schiele: Portraits"

Through 1/19, Neue Galerie

A portrait show of the Klimt disciple who developed a style as distinctive as his teacher's, and more harrowing.

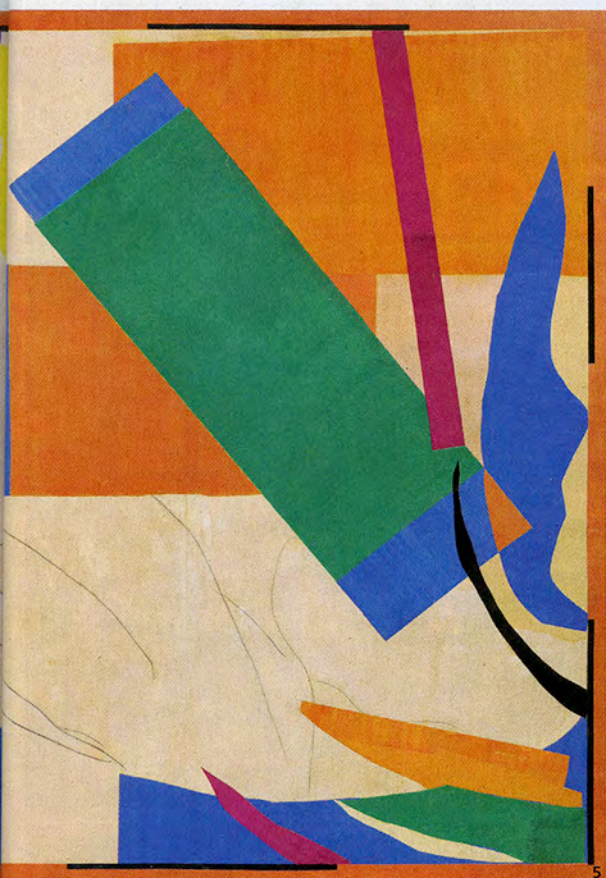

10/12

"Henri Matisse: The Cut-Outs"

Through 2/8, MoMA
Age bred creativity for Matisse, who, faced with deteriorating health, put aside paint, picked up paper and scissors, and fashioned a new medium in color and geometry.

Valeska Soares

Through 11/23, Eleven Rivington
For "Keeping Time," Soares mounts a grid of 365 antique book covers and dust jackets from across the ages, all with titles referencing time.

10/24

"The Floral Ghost"
Through 12/12,
Plinthouse
The Flower District
gallery reaches into the history of its neighborhood with

a show of botanical paintings, silk
screens, etchings,
and more.

10/26

Sara Greenberger Rafferty
Through 12/21,
Rachel Uffner

New work from an artist known for her murky rephotographed
figures and related
image appropriation.
Expect new materials and printing techniques.

"Zero Tolerance"
Through 3/8,
MoMA PS1
A group show
sorting through the aesthetic
aftermath of clashes between citizens and their governments
around the world.
Pussy Riot, Halil

Altindere, and many more.

10/29

"Chris Ofili: Night and Day"
Through 2/1,
New Museum
Notorious for that show that so

inflamed
Rudy Giuliani,
Ofili has mixed
paint, elephant
dung, glitter,
foil, resin, pins,
and just about everything else in
elaborate paintings,
sculptures, and
drawings.

10/30

Daniel Gordon
Through 12/20,
Wallspace
Culling bits of new
and old media,
Gordon builds multidimensional
assemblages, then
photographs them.
